Roros is a town in South Trondelag. Since the 17. century copper mining has been the most important activity, and the centre of the town consists of old buildings from the 17. and 18. century. Because of this, Roros has been designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Roros is nowadays a very popular tourist destination.

In winter, Roros is one of the coldest places in Southern Norway.

The distance from Oslo to Roros is about 240 miles and from Trondheim to Roros it's about 95 miles.
